

Published by the Press Publishing Company.

FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 8.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO THE EVENING WORLD

(including postage)

PER MONTH.....$3.50
PER YEAR.....$33.50

Vol. 32.....No. 11,000

Entered at the Post-Office at New York as second-class matter.

5TH BRANCH OFFICES—
WORLD UPTOWN OFFICE—1627 BROADWAY
BETWEEN 31ST AND 32ND ST., NEW YORKBROOKLYN—309 WASHINGTON ST., HARLEM—
New Department, 150 EAST 125TH ST. Adver-tisements at 223 EAST 125TH ST.PHILADELPHIA, PA.—101 BROADWAY, BUILDING 112
NIGHT 6TH ST., WASHINGTON 410 BROAD ST.
LONDON OFFICE—22 COOPER ST., TRAFAL-

GAR SQUARE.

The Evening World Prints Associated Press News.

A Gain of 36,213
PER DAY.

The following figures are taken from the books of THE WORLD and are SUBJECT TO ANY TEST or comparison to which esteemed contemporaries may be pleased to subject them:

Total number of WORLD'S printed bona fide during December, 1890.....9,208,780

Total number of WORLD'S printed bona fide during December, 1891.....10,381,420

Total gain for December, 1891.....1,122,640

AVERAGE PER DAY FOR DECEMBER, 1890,
297,058.AVERAGE PER DAY FOR DECEMBER, 1891,
333,271.TOTAL GAIN PER DAY FOR 1891,
36,213.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF.

Five of the dens kept by New York's outlaws are closed at present. The indications are that three of them are closed for good. This leaves three still in full blast of the eight upon THE EVENING WORLD's list.

Of the three now running one was closed for a few days and was then opened again, perhaps with the idea that the storm had spent its force. But the proprietor is mistaken in his idea. There is no "blowing over" to be looked for. The outlaws must go.

Of the three places closed apparently for good two were the most notorious in the city. One of them is that which was run for BILLY McGLORY, the outlaw who is now in jail. And right here it may be remarked that the conviction of McGLORY did not rest with the police nor the District-Attorney. The man was brought to task through the Grand Jury, over the heads of the regular local bureaus of detection and prosecution.

What has been done may be done again. History repeats itself.

A titled and widowed mamma, with three daughters, all in reduced circumstances, have been supporting themselves in Berlin by taking turns at writing to far-off counts, barons and the like of one another's affections and needs. Sometimes a daughter would be dying for want of seam. Again, the mother would be similarly affected. Usually a check came in reply to the painful letter. The operations of these ladies have just been exposed. But the success up to the present time proves that there is very much in a name, when an old and well-known title goes with it, despite SHAKESPEARE'S disdainful inquiry.

An original brigade order-book of the Army of the Potomac turns up in the possession of a professor of athletics, who bought it with a lot of itchy Juan fifteen years ago. He has just discovered that it's worth something, and he won't let the Government have it for less than $50. Here is fresh evidence that the war is over. Also, that somebody was careless with the archives at Washington.

The Democrats of the State Senate should not need the reminder given in THE WORLD that they should not trust one of the Republican members except upon a perfectly clear case in which both justice and law are plainly on their side. Only by a fair and square course can the Democratic majority at Albany justify the confidence with which the people received it on its advent into power.

Representative ENGLER seems to have the courage of several convictions. At Washington yesterday he introduced bills to repeal the McKNIELEY Tariff and the Mail Ship Subsidy act; also to reduce the expenses of Senators and Representatives attending Congressional funerals.

Within five minutes of the time a woman fell dead in Washington Square yesterday thieves had got her pocket-book and stripped her fingers of valuable rings. New York's predatory birds are troubled neither with clumsiness nor inconvenient scruples.

A Paterson crank, caught standing on his head on a railroad track, declared he was President Harrison. What connection his acrobatic performance had with his assumed character only experienced and venturesome politicians should be allowed to say.

In two days ending yesterday 700 bills were introduced in the House at Washington. The cemetery for proposed National measures which died young will need an extension unless somebody stops.

That die-lateness has taken Holland is an old but always interesting fact. It is news, however, that the grip has taken Denmark. Over two thousand cases in one week is Chapman's record.

Somebody has paid $80,000 for the privilege of using the Keeley cure for drunkenness in Cincinnati. Is the "land of steady habitation" getting off its sober base?

The Whisky Trust must go, it is said. Most everything in the name of whisky is being opened in these columns. This is evidenced by the large number of letters really received, and the apparent earnestness of their contents.

As for New York's outlaw, they must go.

THE CLEANSER.

I hear that the Cherry Diamond Dramatic Association is preparing some very interesting entertainments to be given at the Club theatre. Among the prominent amateur thespians of the club are J. L. Hackett, Fred A. Ware, J. D. Borr, Harry Kunlike, Archie Haines, W. T. Wood, and R. Ripley. Several well-known lady amateurs have been taken in as associate members.

It takes no small amount of skill to pack the thousands of boxes of oranges which are annually received in the New York market. To do it properly each orange should be wrapped in tissue paper, twisted tightly around the stem, and the orange should be laid in the stem down. This care, however, is seldom observed, except in the case of choice fruit. The fact that an expert packer can pack eighty boxes in ten hours, or more than 1800 oranges, shows that, ordinarily, very little care can be taken in performing the task.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

Among the new stars in the electrical constellation is Miss Bessie Duncan Nairne, who is rapidly winding a name in society circles. Miss Nairne is a Brooklyn girl of attractive face and graceful carriage, and possesses a strong yet flexible voice. Her repertoire comprises a well-selected collection of readings.

A clerk in an uptown dry-goods store is the latest candidate for the absent-mindedness medal. Two of his front teeth are fake, and he reached the store yesterday before he found that he had forgotten to insert the useful but troublesome fasteners. He was obliged to tear a large amount of chamois from his fellow-soldiers.

I hear that the Sultan of Turkey has just conferred the insignia of the Sinecure upon Mrs. Cecilia Zaroff, sole American representative of the "C. C. F." for services rendered in aid of destitute subjects, comprising the embassadors of the Turkish Consulate Fund. This is a distinction which only a few persons possess.

The City of Divorcees Has a Rival.
(From the Chicago Post.)

Let the scuffers who regard Chicago's divorce facilities as unequalled ponder over the fact that a Chicagoan has just secured his decree in South Dakota.

May Be True of Chili.
(From the Boston Globe.)

The wheels of legislation are about to start up again all around the circle, with the promise of an unusual crop of new laws. Chili and the grip will soon have to take back seats.

Gratitude and Free Passes.
(From the Kansas City Star.)

There is no particular reason why "gentlemen enclined in public service" should have railroads pass, but there is reason to believe that they will continue to receive them in spite of the Interstate Commerce Commission's judgment that gentlemen in public life can never be accused of ingratitude.

The Wall Not a Marker on the Bill.
(From the Chicago Daily.)

A titled and widowed mamma, with three daughters, all in reduced circumstances, have been supporting themselves in Berlin by taking turns at writing to far-off counts, barons and the like of one another's affections and needs. Sometimes a daughter would be dying for want of seam. Again, the mother would be similarly affected. Usually a check came in reply to the painful letter. The operations of these ladies have just been exposed. But the success up to the present time proves that there is very much in a name, when an old and well-known title goes with it, despite SHAKESPEARE'S disdainful inquiry.

An original brigade order-book of the Army of the Potomac turns up in the possession of a professor of athletics, who bought it with a lot of itchy Juan fifteen years ago. He has just discovered that it's worth something, and he won't let the Government have it for less than $50. Here is fresh evidence that the war is over. Also, that somebody was careless with the archives at Washington.

The Democrats of the State Senate should not need the reminder given in THE WORLD that they should not trust one of the Republican members except upon a perfectly clear case in which both justice and law are plainly on their side. Only by a fair and square course can the Democratic majority at Albany justify the confidence with which the people received it on its advent into power.

Representative ENGLER seems to have the courage of several convictions. At Washington yesterday he introduced bills to repeal the McKNIELEY Tariff and the Mail Ship Subsidy act; also to reduce the expenses of Senators and Representatives attending Congressional funerals.

Within five minutes of the time a woman fell dead in Washington Square yesterday thieves had got her pocket-book and stripped her fingers of valuable rings. New York's predatory birds are troubled neither with clumsiness nor inconvenient scruples.

A Paterson crank, caught standing on his head on a railroad track, declared he

FOR DOMESTIC RULE.

Bright Women Tell How Husbands Are Managed.

Matrons and Maids Express Some Decided Opinions.

An Interesting Contest Open to All Evening World Readers.

Somebody has paid $80,000 for the privilege of using the Keeley cure for drunkenness in Cincinnati. Is the "land of steady habitation" getting off its sober base?

The Whisky Trust must go, it is said. Most everything in the name of whisky is being opened in these columns. This is evidenced by the large number of letters really received, and the apparent earnestness of their contents.

As for New York's outlaw, they must go.

THE CLEANSER.

I hear that the Cherry Diamond Dramatic Association is preparing some very interesting entertainments to be given at the Club theatre. Among the prominent amateur thespians of the club are J. L. Hackett, Fred A. Ware, J. D. Borr, Harry Kunlike, Archie Haines, W. T. Wood, and R. Ripley. Several well-known lady amateurs have been taken in as associate members.

It takes no small amount of skill to pack the thousands of boxes of oranges which are annually received in the New York market. To do it properly each orange should be wrapped in tissue paper, twisted tightly around the stem, and the orange should be laid in the stem down. This care, however, is seldom observed, except in the case of choice fruit. The fact that an expert packer can pack eighty boxes in ten hours, or more than 1800 oranges, shows that, ordinarily, very little care can be taken in performing the task.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

There is no small amount of skill to pack the thousands of boxes of oranges which are annually received in the New York market. To do it properly each orange should be wrapped in tissue paper, twisted tightly around the stem, and the orange should be laid in the stem down. This care, however, is seldom observed, except in the case of choice fruit. The fact that an expert packer can pack eighty boxes in ten hours, or more than 1800 oranges, shows that, ordinarily, very little care can be taken in performing the task.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something like 2,500 Yale graduates in this vicinity who ought to come in and join the Association has led to the belief that this could be accomplished if greater inducements were held out. If the membership could be brought up to 800 or 1,000 there is no doubt that a permanent Yale Club would be established in this city, and, it is said, is the ultimate purpose of the present movement.

The Yale Alumni Association of New York is talking of reducing the number of its monthly reunions from six to three, exclusive of the annual dinner, which usually takes the place of the January meeting. This will naturally involve a corresponding reduction in the annual dues. The object is to increase the membership, for although the Association has always been in a most prosperous condition, having a membership averaging 2,500, the fact that there are something